6 Stacy Seegars
Stacy Seegars is another in a fine group of All-America linemen to play with the Tigers over the last decade. While many of his predecessors have failed to make it in the NFL, most observers feel this 320-pound guard will break the trend.

49 NFL at Clemson?
By the end of this month we will know for sure if the NFL will be playing at Death Valley in 1995. It could be a dream come true for many Tigers in the NFL who thought they had played their last game in their favorite stadium. They will be able to relive all but one of their fond memories.

51 Thad Ridgley
Thad Ridgley is one of two football players in his family to play on a top 15 college football team. It has made for some long-range planning for his parents.

61 Bryce Nelson
Bryce Nelson is one of many junior college transers who have moved into a starting role for the Tigers this season. The senior will always be remembered for his contributions to Clemson's incredible victory at Virginia last season.

63 Lady Tiger Basketball
All-American Shandy Bryan has graduated, but the return of three starters and some outstanding recruits leave people to believe that Jim Davis's Lady Tigers will be in the NCAA tournament field for the seventh straight season.

76 Textile Bowl 1993
The Textile Bowl matches up two great universities in the Carolinas, North Carolina State and Clemson. Each is nationally recognized for outstanding athletics as well as programs in textile education and training.

111 Whitey Jordan
Jordan is finally back home at Clemson after 20 seasons coaching other prominent Division One schools. He has served the Tigers as a player or coach during a forty-year span.

112 The Last Word
Fred Cone might be the greatest recruiting story in Clemson sports history. Bob Bradley takes us back over 40 years and relates the unusual circumstances by which Frank Howard discovered one of Clemson's all-time greats.

Today's Game

Tigers Face Former Tiger

For the first time ever, a Clemson graduate will be the head coach of a football team in Death Valley when the Tigers meet N.C. State. Wolfpack Head Coach Mike O'Cain earned his Clemson degree in 1977 and was a quarterback for the Tigers between 1973-76.

O'Cain is the first Clemson graduate to become a head coach at the Division I level since 1904 when Shack Shealy, Clemson class of 1900, became the head coach of the Tigers. Shealy succeeded John Heisman and coached Clemson to a 3-3-1 record in that 1904 season. His three wins were against Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee.

O'Cain lettered in 1974-75, but never was considered the starting quarterback over the course of the season. However, he was a co-captain, and the MVP of the 1976 team. He remains the only nonstarter in Clemson history to be selected as the team's most valuable player. He did hold the starting punting position, but earned the award predominantly for his quarterback play.

One of his greatest games as a Tiger was a record-setting performance. In 1976, ironically, against N.C. State, O'Cain set a Clemson record for rushing yardage by a Clemson quarterback with 140 yards on 13 carries. The Wolfpack won that game 38-21. O'Cain also had a 290-yard game in terms of total offense the previous season, the 10th best total in Clemson history. In a 38-35 win over North Carolina, O'Cain passed for 243 yards and rushed for 47 more. For his career, O'Cain completed 91-182 for 1291 yards.

N.C. State Update

O'Cain's team is off to a 2-1 start, a 20-7 win over Purdue, a 34-16 triumph at Wake Forest, and a 35-14 loss to North Carolina. The Pack has gotten off to a good start in each game and has allowed just 10 points in the first half all season.

Geoff Bender is the starting quarterback. The 6-3 junior has completed 26-41 passes for 335 yards and three scores. He hit 10-11 passes against North Carolina, then suffered a shoulder injury that prohibited him from playing in the second half. N.C. State was outscored 25-0 in the second half.

Gary Downs, the starting tailback, is the top rusher with 248 yards on 58 attempts. His 82.7 yards per game is the third best in the ACC and ranks 44th in the nation. Eddie Goines is the top receiver with 13-307, an average of 102 yards per game, good enough for 15th in the nation.

Witherspoon Leads Ground Game

Senior tailback Derrick Witherspoon rushed for 111 yards in 20 carries to lead the Clemson offense in the 16-13 win over Georgia Tech. It was a landmark performance for Witherspoon because it was the first start of his four-year career. The native of Sumter, SC had been a reliable backup heading into this season with 442 yards and a 4.7 average, plus an impressive 30 career receptions for 238 yards.

The 111 rushing yards ranked second in Witherspoon's 33-game career. As a freshman he came off the bench to gain 123 yards on just 10 carries, including an 81-yard run that was the longest by a Clemson running back in Death Valley in 40 years. But, his performance against Georgia Tech was his most significant accomplishment as a Tiger. "Spoon" showed his toughness in the second half as he gained 88 yards after halftime. He did not pad his stats with a long run, either, as his longest run of the game was just 13 yards.

Witherspoon gained only 56 yards in just 16 carries all of last year. He obviously exceeded those figures in both areas against Georgia Tech. Ironically, the only other time in his career that he has had at least a dozen carries in a game was against Georgia Tech in 1990. As a first-year freshman, Witherspoon gained 50 yards in 13 attempts in Atlanta.

Buckner With Key Interception

When Brentson Bucker provides a key play in a Clemson victory it usually involves a sack. That was not the case against Georgia Tech last week. Buckner, a 300-pound defensive tackle, became the first Clemson defensive lineman since 1988 to intercept a pass. His four-yard return to the Georgia Tech 35, set up Clemson's go-ahead touchdown in the third period, the last score of the game for either team.

The last Tiger defensive lineman to intercept a pass was Vance Hammond, who had a 29-yard return against North Carolina in 1988. Buckner had five tackles and a quarterback pressure and was a key reason Clemson held Georgia Tech to just 30 yards rushing and five total first downs in the second half.

Clemson's Young Defense

Clemson gave up just one touchdown to Georgia Tech in the 16-13 victory. Bill Lewis's team gained just 72 yards total offense in the second half of that contest, and most importantly, did not score a point. It was a strong performance by a defense that started just two seniors, Brentson Buckner and outside linebacker Harom Pringle.

Clemson started seven first-year sophomores, including four in the secondary, in the victory. Additionally, five other freshmen and sophomores saw significant action in the contest. All total, 22 players participated from scrimmage on defense for Clemson against Georgia Tech and only four of them were seniors.

The last time a Clemson defense started only two seniors over the course of the season was 1985. The 1985 and 1970 Clemson defenses were the only other defenses since two-platoon football came back in 1964 that saw just two Tiger seniors start for the course of the season. The last Clemson defense to have only one starter over the course of the season was in 1951.

Two Point Plays

A key to Clemson's win over Georgia Tech was the execution of the two-point conversion. Clemson made the most of two touchdowns, scoring a pair of two-point conversions, giving Clemson the maximum 16 points on two TDs. The first conversion was the result of a bobbled snap by third-string QB Travis Harvey. The walk-on made the most of it, picked up the ball and dove for the end zone. The second conversion was scored by Louis Solomon on a quarterback option, but it was a costly play as Solomon injured a big toe on the play.

It was certainly a rarity to score a pair of two-point conversions in the same game. In fact, it is a rarity when Clemson scores two two-point plays in the same season. The two-point scores were the first by a Clemson team since 1990. Heading into this year Clemson had scored just 20 two-point conversions in 57 attempts since 1972, a 35.1 percent success rate. Clemson never made more than two in a season between 1977-92. The last time Clemson had more than two in a season was in 1976 when the Tigers were three for six.

As far as a single game is concerned, the last time Clemson scored at least two two-point plays in a game was November 10, 1962. In a 44-3 win over Furman, the Tigers made four two-point conversions in five attempts. Three of the two-point plays were passes and one by rushing. The three two-point plays were thrown by three different passers. Clemson had missed two PATs by kicking, so Frank Howard went for two after each of the last five scores.

Clemson Punt Return Game Outstanding

Clemson is ranked seventh in the nation in punt returns through three games and has two of the top 25 punt returners in the nation. The Tigers have averaged 14 yards per punt return on nine attempts so far this season. Andre Humphrey has a 16.2 average on five attempts and ranks seventh in the nation, while Dexter

Tim Jones had eleven tackles against the Wolfpack last year.

Jason Davis is Clemson's second-leading receiver. With Terry Smith's injury his role will become more important this afternoon.

McClaon has shown his all-around ability and has an 11.3 average on his four attempts. The only Clemson player to rank in the top 10 in the nation in punt returns for the course of the season is Donnell Woolford, who was third in 1987 with a 15.5 average. Clemson actually had two of the top 20 punt returners in the nation that year as James Lott was 18th with a 11.7 average.

Longer Uprights Paying Off

During the offseason Clemson placekicker Nelson Welch encouraged Ken Hatfield to install higher uprights in Clemson Memorial Stadium. For years colleges, including Clemson, had uprights that were 20 feet high. The NFL has been using 30-foot uprights to help officials decide on the outcome of a field goal. Plus, most kickers enjoy having a taller target.

In the offseason Clemson installed the taller uprights and they have come into play in both of Clemson's home games so far this year. In the 24-14 win over UNLV, the Rebels had a 24-yard field goal attempt to tie the game on the first play of the fourth quarter. However, the attempt hit the right upright and bounded away.

Then, in the 16-13 win over Georgia Tech, the Yellow Jackets had a 31-yard field goal attempt on the last play of the first half. The attempt hit the left upright and bounced away. Both kicks struck high up on the upright, allowing those extra 10 feet to come into play. If it had not been for the higher uprights the officials would have had to make a judgment call because the boot would have soared over the top of the upright.

Harvey Scores Important Two Points

With the scholarship reductions in college football over the years, the influence of the walk-on will become greater and greater. A walk-on had a big play for the Tigers on Saturday in the three-point win by the Tigers over Georgia Tech.

Third-team quarterback Travis Harvey is a walk-on from Annandale, VA. The 6-2, 190-pounder, who was born in St. Louis, MO, scored a two-point conversion run after a problem with the snap on the extra point attempt following Terry Smith's 36-yard TD reception in the second period. Harvey picked up the ball and dove for the goal line. He put his head down and muscled in for the score to bring Clemson to within 10-8 instead of 10-6.

Harvey is in his third year at Clemson, he joined the program as a freshman in August of 1991. During his high school career he was the most valuable player of his Stuart High School team, leading the squad in total offense with over 1500 yards. Harvey was also a standout on the track team, as he was the team's high point man at the district outdoor meet in 1991. He played on the district track championship team for three years, 1989, 1990 and 1991.

Solomon Leads Clemson Comeback

Louis Solomon did it again. The red-shirt sophomore brought Clemson back from a double-digit deficit to a Tiger victory in Clemson's win over Georgia Tech. It marked the second time in two seasons that Solomon has come off the bench to help save the day.

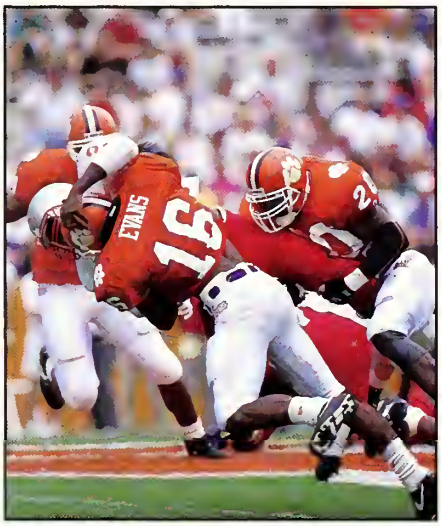
In 1992 he directed the greatest comeback in Clemson history when he led the Tigers to a 29-28 win at Virginia. The Tigers trailed the 10th-ranked Cavaliers 28-0 with just three minutes left in the first half. Solomon entered and scored on a 64-yard run on an option play on his first possession at the helm. That momentum carried over to the second half and the Tigers gained a one-point win.

This past Saturday, Clemson trailed Georgia Tech 10-0 when Solomon entered the game at the 11:42 mark of the second period. He promptly hit Terry Smith for a 36-yard touchdown. He then took Clemson to the go-ahead score on the first drive of the third period. Unfortunately, Solomon suffered a turf toe injury when scoring on the two-point conversion that put the Tigers up 16-13, the eventual final score.

Young Linebackers Do It Again

Linebackers Derek Burnette and Tim Jones continue to lead the Clemson defense. The duo combined for 19 tackles against Georgia Tech and now have 50 tackles for the season. Either Burnette or Jones have led the Tigers in tackles in 10 of the last 14 games.

Burnette was Clemson's top defensive player against Georgia Tech. He led the way in tackles with 11, including nine first hits. The native of Columbus, GA also had two tackles for loss and had two caused fumbles. The two caused fumbles tied a Clemson single game record set by many players. It had not been done by a Tiger since 1990 when Ed McDaniel had two caused fumbles against N.C. State.



Leomont Evans and Brian Dawkins are two of the sophomore starters in Clemson's young secondary.

Jackson Performs Well in Front of Friends

Clemson 330-pound offensive tackle Robert Jackson had the best all-around game of the Clemson offensive linemen on Saturday. The native of Washington, DC graded 70 percent and had seven knockdown blocks, more than any other Tiger. Jackson might have had some special motivation because his high school football team attended the Clemson-Georgia Tech game. Woodson High played at Seneca High on Friday night and the team stayed over for the game at Death Valley. Jackson has now graded at least 75 percent in all three games this season.

Smith Moving Up the Charts

Clemson wide receiver Terry Smith continues his swift move up the Clemson receiving charts. The senior from Clemson, SC who ranks 20th in the nation in reception yards per game, now ranks third in Clemson history in career receptions and reception yards, and is fourth in touchdown receptions.

Smith caught a 36-yard touchdown pass against Georgia Tech, his second of the season and 13th as a Tiger. Smith now trails just Glenn Smith, Perry Tuttle and Terrance Roulhac in touchdown receptions.

Smith now has 137 career receptions for 2,178 yards. He needs just three catches to move ahead of Jerry Butler into second place in total receptions. Butler had 139 in his All-America Clemson career that concluded in 1978. Smith still needs 14 receptions to break Perry Tuttle's career mark.

Simpson, Wynn Make Contribution

Two players who had not seen significant action in at least two years made important contributions in the win over Georgia Tech. Tight end Stephon Wynn and defensive tackle Tyrone Simpson certainly enjoyed the victory over the Yellow Jackets after spending much more time in the training room than on the practice field.

Wynn missed all of last year and had not played since November of 1991. The junior sat out last year with an abdominal injury, but he played 32 snaps against the Yellow Jackets.

Simpson had a tackle for loss and a pass deflection, a quarterback pressure and four total tackles in 22 plays against Georgia Tech.

Stacy Seegars

by Annabelle Vaughan

The last thing Stacy Seegars wants to do is rock the boat.

But at 6-4, 320 pounds, he just can't help it sometimes.

It isn't what he says. In fact, unless you are a close friend or family member, you may not ever hear him open his mouth. And it isn't what he does, because on the football field, he works with the energy of a plow horse. But sometimes, this reticent, withdrawn, almost-shy hulk creates more waves than a tidal wave.

"When I go out fishing with [roommate] Nick (Blinsky), we have to really watch what we're doing in my boat," says Clemson's massive lineman. "We sure don't get on the same side of the boat at the same time or we could really have problems. One time me and my Dad and my uncle were out fishing and my uncle and I were sitting on buckets. I leaned forward to set a hook and fell forward in the boat and the whole front end of the boat filled up with water. My Dad got soaked!" "His Dad said he's never going out with three in the boat again if one of the three is Stacy," laughs Joanna Seegars, Stacy's mother.

But on autumn Saturdays, Seegars poses quite a different threat to Tiger defenders when he lines up at his right guard position. He has been one of the most dominating offensive players in the ACC for the past two years. Seegars has become one of the most renowned offensive linemen in the country, gleaning preseason All-America honors from almost every preseason football publication on the newsstands.

But although Seegars loves playing the actual game of football, when it comes to public acknowledgment of his skills . . . well, he'd rather be fishing. "Don't get me wrong, I love the game of football. When I'm playing football, I'd rather be playing football. But when I'm not playing football, I want to be out there on the lake with a fishing pole in my hand. Out there, I'm not expected to do my best. I'm not expected to be or do anything. I can just go out there and have fellowship with friends and relax. I appreciate the publicity because I think it is going to help me as far as advancing to the pro's, but it's my parents who really enjoy it. My mother seems to find every magazine that mentions my name."

Joanna Seegars corroborates. "Stacy doesn't like to be bragged on or complimented at all," she says. "He gets upset with me because everything I see with his name in it, I get. They think I go to the grocery store for groceries, but I really go for the magazines! In fact, the other day, his Daddy came home with a bag that had five copies of a magazine with Stacy in it. I laughed and told him we already had copies of that magazine. He told me that those copies were for the safe!"

Seegars first grabbed the attention of the ACC football world in his performance against a #12 N.C. State team in 1991. He had seven knockdown blocks in Clemson's 10-point win.

Seegars is the first to admit that the main characteristic that has gotten him the attention he has today is his size. "Sometimes people get on me about losing weight, but I just tell them that it was my size that got me here," he says. "When you're running behind him, he's as wide as three people," says tailback Rodney Blunt. When he pulls from his guard position to lead the Tigers' rushing attack, it looks like the trailer of an eighteen-wheeler has just been unhitched from the cab. And in 1992, when Seegars carried the ball for 23 yards on a guard-around play, well, suffice it to say even Chris Berman would have been speechless.

If his size was any indication, Mrs. Seegars should have known that her little big boy would some day grow up to be a star. After weighing in at a whopping 10 pounds, 5-1/2 ounces at birth, Stacy tipped the scales at 16 pounds when he went in for his six-week checkup. "The doctor put him on low fat milk then and he's been on it ever since," she remembers. "When he was in kindergarten, he looked like he was in third or fourth grade. His best friend was the tiniest one in the class. We have a picture of the two of them and his friend only comes up to Stacy's chest."

Being so uncommonly large has not always been easy for Seegars, but he appreciates the fact that his physical bulk has gotten him where he is today. "Being bigger than everyone else has pretty much been my life story," he says matter-of-factly. "I was never a bully, I have always gotten along with just about anybody. But I always was bigger. I guess football was a natural thing for me to do. I started out in Pee Wee League. One year I was too big to play so I had to sit out and then another year I was too big so I got sent up to play at the middle school.

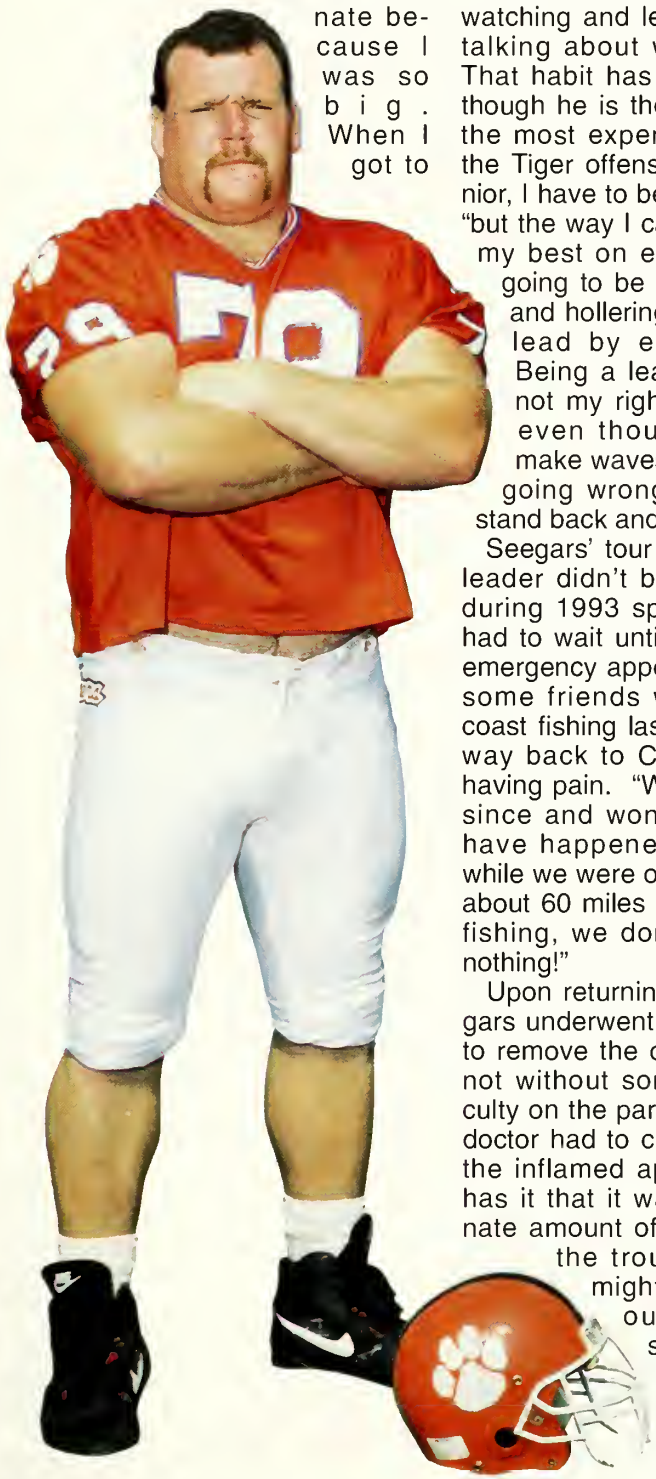
"When I was in ninth grade, I was playing on the varsity and I could see the difference maturity made even back then," he continues. "I was 15 and I was playing with 18 year olds, but everybody expected me to dominate because I was so big. When I got to Clemson, I was bigger than anyone on the team, but I wasn't mature. So I had to red-shirt a year. People think that size makes a player, but maturity makes a player."



Seegars is among the strongest linemen in Clemson history.

Because he was always one of the youngest players, Seegars got in the habit of sitting back and watching and learning, rather than talking about what he could do. That habit has not changed even though he is the senior leader and the most experienced member of the Tiger offensive line. "As a senior, I have to be a leader," he says, "but the way I can do that is to play my best on every play. I'm not going to be the one jumping up and hollering all the time. I just lead by example, I guess. Being a leader as a senior is not my right, it's my duty. So even though I don't like to make waves, if I see something going wrong, I'm not going to stand back and let it go."

Seegars' tour of duty as a senior leader didn't begin as scheduled during 1993 spring workouts, but had to wait until this fall due to an emergency appendectomy. He and some friends were down on the coast fishing last spring and on the way back to Clemson, he began having pain. "We've talked about it since and wondered what would have happened if it had started while we were out fishing. We were about 60 miles out and when we're fishing, we don't turn around for nothing!"

Upon returning to Clemson, Seegars underwent emergency surgery to remove the offending organ, but not without some degree of difficulty on the part of the doctor. The doctor had to cut four times to find the inflamed appendix and rumor has it that it was Seegar's inordinate amount of muscle that led to the trouble. "I think that might have been blown out of proportion," says Seegars with a grimace.

But now that Seegars' senior season has finally gotten underway, as befitting a player of his caliber, he dreams of going pro. But his foremost professional aspirations might not be what one would expect. "I would love to be a professional fisherman," he says. "That's a dream of my life to one day be a Bassmaster. I'm not that good, but I could be if I had every day to do it."

Seegars knows that a successful career in the NFL might someday allow him to take the time off necessary to become a first-class fisherman and he hopes that at the end of this season, his name will be among the first called in the NFL draft. "But the pros can't do anything for me right now," he says. "Right now, I have a whole season to play for Clemson and if I don't play my best on every play, I won't even have to worry about the pros.

"Now that I have a chance to go pro, a lot of people have become Stacy Seegars fans. But the fans I really like dealing with are the kids. I may not be the friendliest guy in the world, but I really like kids. Kids don't come and tell you how great they are, they tell you what they really think. A kid doesn't judge me as a person by how I perform on the football field."

Being known as Stacy Seegars who happens to play football, not as football player Stacy Seegars, is very important to the 1992 second-team AP All-American. "That's why I really like my hometown. When I go home, I'm just Stacy. When I see people at the gas station, they don't want to just talk about football. They really want to know how I'm doing. That's very important to me. My family and my fiancée (Kelli) are the same way. They want me to make it playing pro ball if that's what I want, but I know that it doesn't matter to them whether I'm playing football or not. I want a future that is for sure, and football is not a sure thing. My family and Kelli are going to be there no matter what, so they are the things that are most important to me."

"Stacy is very special," says his mother, who is admittedly a bit prejudiced. "He really doesn't care about the attention or the publicity and he really does care about people. We are very proud of him for that, not just for what he's done on the football field."

Dr. Max Lennon

Clemson University President Max Lennon's ambition is to be president of the nation's top technologically-oriented land grant university. And he doesn't plan to leave campus to achieve that goal. Because that's the vision Lennon has for Clemson: not to be "one of the best," but to be better at what it does than any other school.

To achieve the vision, Lennon has brought the business world's concepts of total quality management and strategic planning to the academic arena. He hopes these concepts will help reduce bureaucracy, increase involvement of students, faculty and staff in the management of the university, increase diversity, and create an atmosphere of a community of scholars.

"The vision statement that has emerged from the strategic planning process—to become the nation's leading technologically-oriented land-grant university—sets a challenging course for this institution's development: to become the best in our league," he has said.

It is this commitment to excellence that has enabled Lennon to lead Clemson to new heights during his seven years as president. The Lennon presidency has seen the completion of the most successful campaign in the university's, and the state's, history; unprecedented growth in research, topping $100 million in annual expenditures last year; and an ongoing program of campus revitalization that balances the university's desire for technological excellence, cultural awareness, and historic preservation.

Lennon came to Clemson from Ohio State University, where he had been president for agriculture administration and executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. He also served on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and co-chaired the Governor's Commission on Agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture at Ohio State, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, NC, and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N.C. State University, where he began his teaching career.

The Clemson president has been active in a number of state and national organizations. He is one of 13 university presidents and chancellors appointed to a nationwide committee to study the role of public service at land-grant and other public institutions.

The Outreach Futures Committee, a product of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, is charged with rethinking the concept of Extension-type activities at public colleges and universities.

"The traditional Extension model has been enormously effective at increasing agricultural productivity and rural development in this country, and now we need to modernize traditional programs and to look at harnessing that same type of energy to focus on other community and educational needs, such as health, natural resource management, and K-12 education," Lennon said. "Clemson is recognized as a national leader in developing a new outreach model through programs in local leadership development, community-based education and creative programming for young people and their families."

In addition to the Outreach committee post, Lennon serves on the organization's Commission on Veterinary Medicine and is a member of the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment's Advisory Council. He is also a member of the Council of Presidents, the S.C. Research Authority Board, the Chamber of Commerce Board, the National Dropout Prevention Fund Board, the Farm Foundation Board, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics and the SACS Executive Council. Other Board appointments include First Union, Delta Woodside and Duke Power.

In 1991, he received the Thomas Green Clemson Medallion, the highest public honor given by the university. Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon. This past year, they joined an elite group of people who can call themselves "Clemson Parents" when both children, Daniel Ray and Robin, received degrees from the university.

Dr. Max Lennon has led Clemson to new heights during his seven years as president.

Ken Hatfield

Hatfield played on a national championship team in college, served as an assistant coach for five top-20 teams and has been the head coach for seven top-20 clubs.

During his career, Ken Hatfield has shown his ability to win, regardless of the conference, the competition, or the program. He is one of only three active coaches to lead three different programs to top-20 seasons and is the only active Division I coach to gain 10-win seasons at three different schools. He has also ranked among the nation's elite in terms of overall winning percentage over the last decade, as his .750 winning percentage over the last 10 years ranks sixth among active coaches who have coached at Division I schools in each year of that time frame. His last 10 teams have competed in nine bowl games and he has produced seven top-20 clubs in the last decade.

When Hatfield took over the Clemson program prior to the 1990 season, he was faced with the challenge of continuing the tradition of excellence set in the eighties (only Nebraska and Miami had fewer losses in that time frame than Clemson). Hatfield has met the challenge, posting a 24-10-1 mark for the Tigers in his first three seasons, two top-20 finishes and the 1991 ACC Championship. The 1991 team was the first Tiger team since 1982 to have just one loss in regular season play.

The victory over Illinois in the 1991 Hall of Fame Bowl made Hatfield the first Clemson coach to win 10 games in his first year and his .833 winning percentage was the best for a first-year Clemson coach since 1900 when John Heisman was 6-0. The 1990 season included six wins over teams with winning records. Only national champion Georgia Tech had more.

Hatfield was just the eighth coach in the last 13 years to take a team to a top-10 AP final ranking in his first year with the program.

But Hatfield's impressive debut at Clemson was no big surprise to those who have followed his career. He has enjoyed success throughout his involvement with the sport of football, as a player and coach.

As a player, he helped Arkansas face every challenge in 1964, when the Razorbacks had an 11-0 season and won the national title. As an assistant coach at Tennessee and Florida, he molded countless players into top-notch athletes who competed for Southeastern Conference titles, played in seven bowl games in a 10-year period, and ranked in the final top 20 five times. As a head coach, he took a dormant Air Force program to a number-13 national ranking and a pair of bowl wins. He continued to meet the challenges at Arkansas, his alma mater, guiding the Razorbacks to back-to-back Southwest Conference titles, something that had not been done at Arkansas since Hatfield was a player.

Hatfield has had five 10-win seasons in his career and has accomplished that task at three different schools. He is the only active coach and one of just two in the history of the game (Dan Devine is the other) to have taken three different schools to a 10-win season.

Hatfield has an overall record of 105-59-3 (.638), but he has won 75 percent of his games over the last 10 seasons (91-29-2). At Arkansas, he posted a record of 55-17-1 over six seasons, a .760 winning percentage. That percentage is second best in Southwest Conference history as only Darrell Royal (Texas 1957-76) had a better percentage.

The native of Helena, Arkansas, played in two bowl games with the Razorbacks, coached in seven post-season games as an assistant and the 1992 Citrus Bowl marked the 10th in which he has been the head coach. Seven times he has coached a team to a top-20 final ranking in the AP poll, and he played on two other top 15 teams.

Hatfield-coached clubs have excelled offensively and defensively, but they have been particularly successful in rushing offense and defense. Each of his last 11 teams have finished in the top 20 nationally in rushing offense, including eight top-10 finishes. This includes last year's team, which averaged 257 yards a game and ranked sixth nationally.

Two of his last four Arkansas teams finished in the top three in the country in turnover margin, including his 1988 team that was first in the nation (Clemson was second that same year). Defensively, his clubs have finished in the top 15 in the nation in rushing defense six of the last seven years. The Tigers were ranked first in the nation in total defense, second in rushing defense, and second in scoring defense at the end of the 1990 regular season.

Clemson ranked first in the nation in rushing defense and fourth in total defense in the 1991 season.

Hatfield has coached in four major conferences and with independent schools, giving him a diverse background in the finer points of the game. It is one reason he was named the third best teaching coach in college football by Inside Sports magazine in 1990.

Hatfield began his coaching career immediately after graduation. In the fall of 1965, he served as an assistant coach at Helena-West Helena High School in Arkansas. In 1966, he moved to West Point, where he served as freshman coach for two seasons.

After the two-year stint at Army, he served as an assistant coach at Tennessee for three years (1968-70). The Volunteers went to post-season bowls all three seasons (including two major bowls), won a conference title and ranked in the final top 20 of the AP poll all three seasons, including a number-four ranking in 1970.

In 1971, Hatfield began a seven-year stint at the University of Florida, spending four seasons as a defensive backfield coach and three as an offensive backfield mentor. Florida played in four bowl games during his career in Gainesville and two more Gator teams finished in the AP top 20, including the 1974 team that played Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl.

Hatfield became offensive coordinator at the Air Force Academy under current New England Patriots Head Coach Bill Parcells in 1978. A year later, Parcells was wooed to the New York Giants and Hatfield became the Falcons' head coach. The Air Force program had not had a winning season since 1973. But by his fourth season, Hatfield had an eight-game winner, led Air Force to its first-ever victory over Notre Dame, and had taken the Falcons to a post-season bowl for the first time since 1971.

In 1983, Hatfield was named national Coach-of-the-Year by the Football Coaches Association (Bobby Dodd Award) after leading Air Force to a 10-2 season that included wins over Notre Dame, Navy and a bowl victory over Mississippi. It was the Academy's first-ever win over Notre Dame in South Bend.

The next year, Hatfield succeeded Lou Holtz at Arkansas, where he would take his alma mater to 55 wins in six seasons, six bowl appearances and four final top-15 rankings. His 1985 club finished with a 10-2 mark and number-12 national ranking, the Razorbacks' first top-20 finish since 1982. Four times the Razorbacks rallied from fourth quarter deficits to gain victory.

The 1986 campaign was another year of success with highlight victories over a nationally ranked Texas A&M club and the Razorbacks' first win in 20 years at Texas. Arkansas advanced to the Orange Bowl and finished 15th in the final AP poll.

Arkansas won the 1988 and 1989 Southwest Conference Championship. He was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Year in 1988 as he took the Razorbacks to the league title and a 10-0 start. Miami (FL) defeated Arkansas 18-16 in the Orange Bowl to stop the streak. Seven players off the 1988 club (all recruited by Hatfield) were drafted by the NFL, an Arkansas single draft record.

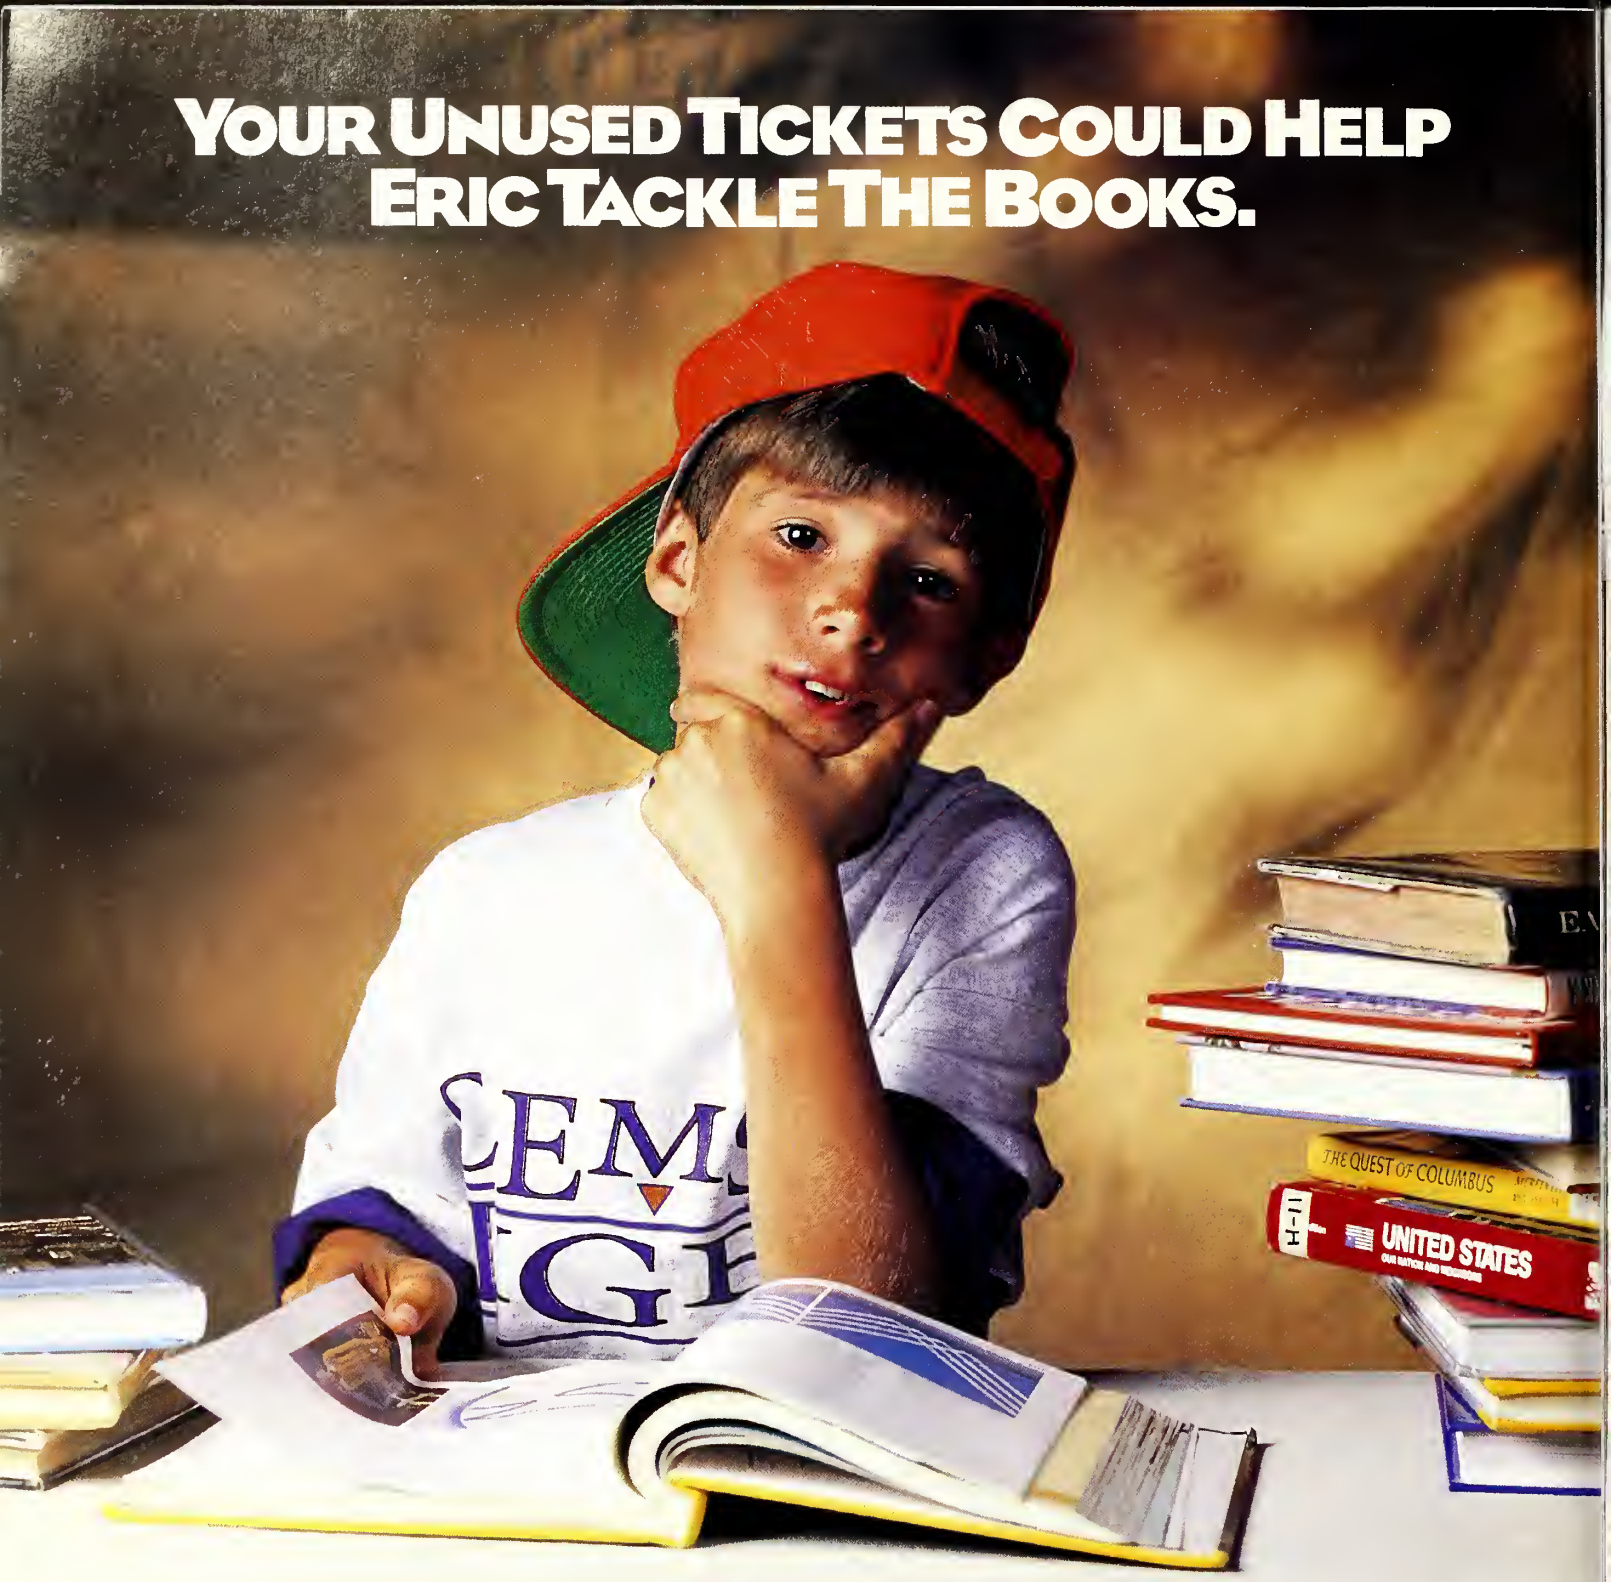
After the 1989 team's 10-2 ledger and second straight SWC championship, Hatfield was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Decade by the Houston Post. Included in the victories was a triumph over a top-15 Houston team and Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware.

Hatfield played for three years at Arkansas (1962-64) and he was a starter on the National Championship team of 1964. A defensive back by trade, he earned his fame as the nation's top punt returner in 1963 and 1964. He also finished as the runner-up as a sophomore and is still the only college football player to finish in the top two in the nation in punt returns three straight seasons.

An accounting major who earned his diploma in the spring of 1965, Hatfield was an Academic All-American in 1964 and was the recipient of the Swartz Award, presented annually to the top student-athlete at Arkansas. The 1964 All-SWC selection was inducted into the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame in 1989. He is married to the former Sandy Wright of Kennett, Missouri.

Hatfield has taken three different schools to 10-win seasons, the only active Division I coach who can make that claim.

YOUR UNUSED TICKETS COULD HELP ERIC TACKLE THE BOOKS.



Eric attends a Homework Center – a place that helps him when Mom and Dad can't. And when he works especially hard, he can win wonderful prizes – like tickets to a Clemson home game that he might otherwise never get to see.

Hundreds of Homework Centers across the nation focus on keeping struggling students from becoming dropouts. In actuality, they're doing a lot more than that. Many hardworking students are bringing their grades up from F's to A's, and in one South Carolina elementary school expulsions declined from 38 to 4 after the centers opened.

Duke Power is proud to help support such an important and effective program. We invite you to help too. Simply donate football or basketball season tickets you're unable to use or purchase extra tickets to contribute to the Homework Centers for use as prizes. Send them at least two weeks before game day to: John Geer, Duke Power Company, P.O. Box 1745, Clemson, SC 29633.

If you do, you'll be helping students like Eric tackle the books today so that tomorrow they can tackle the world.

Clemson Sports Program

In 1992-93 Clemson had seven of its athletic teams finish in the Top 20, while three Clemson athletes won four National Championships. Clemson had 24 first, second or third-team All-Americans in 1992-93, just three away from the most in Clemson history.

Clemson teams laid claims to three ACC Championships in 1992-93 with the men's track program claiming two of those titles and the baseball team taking the third. Ten Clemson teams advanced to postseason play during the 1992-93 academic year and NCAA postseason team bids were received by four teams.

The spring sports enjoyed the most success as three of the four men's spring sports teams finished in the top 20. Golf finished fourth, men's outdoor track finished 10th, and baseball finished 16th. The women's tennis squad posted a number-12 national ranking.

The highest national finish was posted by the men's indoor track squad as the Tigers finished second for the second straight year. Three of Clemson's four national championship performances came from the men's track program and head coach Bob Pollock was named the ACC Coach-of-the-Year for indoor and outdoor track.

The Tiger golf team finished fourth nationally and all five Clemson golfers who competed at NCAA's were named honorable mention All-American or better. Baseball claimed Clemson's third ACC Championship of the 1992-93 year and advanced to the NCAA Mideast Regional. The wrestling team had its highest finish ever with a number-13 final ranking, while Sam Henson captured the National Championship at the 118-pound weight class. The men's soccer squad finished the season with a number-19 national ranking.

The women's basketball team made its sixth consecutive NCAA Tournament appearance. Women's tennis coach Andy Johnston was named the ACC Women's Tennis Coach-of-the-Year after leading his squad to its highest national finish since 1986. Women's outdoor track boasted six All-America performances.

Clemson teams were also a rousing success in the classroom in 1992-93, with a record 122 student-athletes making a 3.0 or better. Hurdler Anthony Knight was Clemson's top all-around student-athlete in 1992-93, winning the ACC's Jim Weaver Award and received an NCAA postgraduate scholarship. Soccer goalie Jaro Zawislan, a second-team All-South selection in soccer, was named a second-team ISAA All-America Academic selection.

√ The ACC is the only conference in the country to have each of its schools play in at least one bowl game in the last four years. The ACC has had 18 total bowl invitations over the last four years.

√ Georgia Tech, with a 17-8 (.680) postseason mark, is number-one among Division I-A teams in bowl winning percentage. √ The nine ACC schools who take the field this fall under the ACC banner have produced 288 first- or second-team gridiron All-Americans and 45 first-team academic All-Americans. ACC schools have had 1,233 players selected in the annual professional draft, including 75 first-round selections.

√ Seven times in the past 13 years an ACC member school has claimed the CFA Academic Achievement Award, which is awarded to a CFA member institution with the highest graduation rate among members of its football team.

√ The ACC had 29 players selected in the 1992 NFL draft, including four first-round selections. The first-round picks were Marvin Jones of Florida State by the New York Jets, Dave Brown of Duke by the New York Giants, Wayne Simmons of Clemson by the Green Bay Packers and Thomas Smith of North Carolina by the Buffalo Bills. For the second year of a three-year contract, the ACC is committed to sending a third team to the Peach Bowl. The ACC begins a two-year deal to have a fourth league team compete against a Big Ten team, also a number-four team, in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

IPTAY

Traditions are something that don't happen overnight, they evolve over a number of years. One tradition at Clemson that is going strong and heading into its 60th year is IPTAY. The IPTAY Scholarship Foundation, is known throughout the country for its faithful and generous contributions by its supporters. A recent USA Today article called IPTAY the best-known organization of its kind in the nation. The article noted that at a time when college athletics costs are rising IPTAY continues to lead the way in supporting athletic scholarships at Clemson. IPTAY plays a major role in insuring that all 18 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships allowed by the NCAA.

Thanks in part to IPTAY's contributions, the 1992-93 academic year proved to be another banner one for Clemson athletics. Seven of the 18 athletic teams finished the year in the top 20 of their respective sports. Twenty-four Clemson student-athletes were named All-Americans. There were three ACC Championship teams during the year from Clemson (men's indoor track, men's outdoor track and baseball) with 56 Tiger athletes earning All-ACC honors. Three Tigers also won four individual national championships during the year, as Michael Green won the 55 and 100 meters and Wesley Russell won the 400 meters indoors for the men's track program, and Sam Henson won the 118-pound wrestling championship. That total marked the most ever in a single sports year at Clemson.

Tiger athletes also excelled in the classroom during the 1992-93 academic year, with 122 student-athletes earning a 3.0 or better for the spring semester. Clemson's Anthony Knight, a hurdler for the track squad, was named a recipient of a $5,000 NCAA Post-Graduate scholarship, one of the highest academic honors given by the NCAA. He also received the ACC's Jim Weaver Award earlier in the year, another postgraduate scholarship that is one of the conference's highest academic accolades.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student-athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of that success by being committed to the student-athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four, and five-million dollar marks in annual donations.

In 1934, Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind: IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Since 1934 IPTAY has certainly met Fike's goal, providing scholarships for over 5,000 student-athletes, trainers, and managers.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors, assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to insure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics.

Bert Henderson, Thurman McLamb, George Bennett and Bob Mahony supervise Clemson's IPTAY Scholarship Foundation.

IPTAY donors have also played an intricate role in the "Campaign for Clemson," a long-range fundraising project of the University. The University's original goal of 62 million dollars was surpassed with the next goal of 78 million also being surpassed in the campaign that ended on June 30, 1992. IPTAY provided three million dollars with ongoing opportunities for donors to be part of the Vickery Hall Academic Learning Center.

Vickery Hall, located on East Campus is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. The building contains various-sized study and tutoring rooms used for individual study as well as small-group instruction. Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium, also are contained in Vickery Hall.

The generous support of 16,274 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalled athletic facilities at Clemson

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $34 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the new outdoor track, the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross-country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide the funding for Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY establishes financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for nonathletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts that are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues.

The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson providing $1.9 million in funds, currently benefitting more than 50 students. IPTAY's support extends to all of the student body.

The tremendous support of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup that allows donors to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County chairman, and every county is allotted an IPTAY representative for every 35 donors.

One important way IPTAY keeps in touch with its membership is the annual Clemson Club meeting held in April and May of each year. These meetings, which feature different coaches and administrators are just one of the ways of making the local IPTAY members feel close to Clemson.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

Former Tigers Could Return

NFL in Death Valley?

by Tim Bourret

Levon Kirkland was a starter for the Clemson Tigers for four years. The native of South Carolina grew up rooting for the Tigers and he enjoyed every minute he played for his University. On November 16, 1991 he played his final game in Clemson Memorial Stadium, a 40-7 victory over Maryland that clinched the ACC championship. Kirkland was very emotional as he spoke with reporters after that game about his successful career in a Clemson uniform and in Death Valley.

Well, Kirkland and many other former Tigers in the NFL may be allowed to rekindle those memories of days gone by. If the Carolinas is awarded a franchise in the NFL expansion derby in October, Kirkland, now a starter for the Pittsburgh Steelers, might just get to play in his beloved Death Valley one more time.

"That would be a game I certainly would look forward to," said Kirkland, who visits Clemson often in the off-season. "I have so many great memories of playing at Clemson. The really strange thing about it would be playing there as the visitor. At some time during the game I am sure I would run to the home sideline just out of habit."

The Richardson Sports Group, which has been working on bringing a franchise to the Carolinas for six years, announced on September 13 that it would play its 1995 home schedule in Clemson Memorial Stadium. The NFL owners are expected to award two franchises at their meeting in Chicago October 26-28. Charlotte is competing with St. Louis, Baltimore, Memphis and Jacksonville.

"Bringing the NFL to the Carolinas is a huge undertaking and playing an inaugural season in a temporary stadium and location, presuming we get a team, is going to be a huge undertaking in its own right," said Jerry Richardson, managing general partner of Richardson Sports. "Everything probably is not going to go perfectly, no matter where we play, but we feel especially good about Clemson's attitude of teamwork and harmony, which are strong beliefs of ours. That will be very important in helping ensure a great experience for our fans at such an exciting time."

Clemson President Max Lenon welcomed the chance to host the NFL. "The people of South Carolina have clearly expressed their interest in a Charlotte-based professional football team, and Clemson University is proud to have a role to play in persuading the NFL to come to the Carolinas."

Two preseason and eight regular season games would be played at Clemson's "Death Valley" on weekends when the Tigers are on the road or idle. The agreement calls for Clemson to receive $1 per ticket (to go toward repayment of the stadium bond) seven percent of all ticket sales, a guaranteed $100,000 academic scholarship, and 10 percent of executive suite sales. Clemson is expected to net about $3 million from the arrangement, which the athletic department and university would share.

Additionally, the presence of an NFL team at Clemson in 1995 would pump an estimated $50 million into the Greenville, SC area.

Richardson Sports has agreed to reimburse Clemson for all pregame and game-day operation expenses, including security, traffic control, ushers, suite attendants, field maintenance and any personnel needed to operate Memorial Stadium. Richardson Sports has indicated a willingness to work with City of Clemson officials regarding the unique requirements that will be placed on the city services as a result of the arrangement.

"We're excited about the opportunities this brings to showcase the community and the university to the rest of the nation, and about the positive financial impact on the university, the city and the surrounding communities," said Bobby Robinson, Clemson athletic director. "We have two years to prepare, and we'll include many people from the campus and local community in that planning process. We want this venture to be a positive experience for everyone."

Clemson Memorial Stadium and its 100 luxury boxes obviously was the major selling point to the Richardson Sports Group. In fact, Clemson Memorial Stadium holds 81,473 fans, a capacity that would rank second largest in the NFL. It would hold 9,171 more fans than the stadium planned for uptown Charlotte, which would be ready for the 1996 season.

"The biggest thing I had to be aware of was the perception of Clemson being a way off in the woods," said Mike McCormack, the general manager for the proposed franchise. "But, when we made the drive there (in early September) we found it was very accessible.

"Mike McCaskey (Chicago Bears President) talked to me before I came down here and told me to look at the Clemson facility. He gave Clemson high praise. I think when Mike, who has the respect of the league, speaks out about how fine a facility Clemson has, that will bear some weight." McCaskey visited Clemson Memorial Stadium a few years back when he was planning to install luxury boxes in Soldier Field.

So what are the overall chances of the NFL awarding the Carolinas a franchise later this month? "I think we have put together a package that would make it awful hard for them to select two other markets," said Mark Richardson of Richardson Sports, who was a member of the Tigers 1981 National Championship team. "It is a complete package that answers every question. It is a package that has no weaknesses, no holes."

Levon Kirkland, and 25 other former Clemson gridders in the National Football League will have their eyes on that meeting in Chicago. If the NFL powers award the Carolinas a franchise, and if the schedule makers cooperate, many former Tigers will be able to relive many of their special moments in Death Valley.

There will be one aspect they won't be able to relive, however. One point was made perfectly clear at the September 13 announcement. No NFL team, even the home standing Carolinas team, will enter the stadium by running down the hill. That tradition will remain unique to the stadium's permanent tenant.

Kirkland, always a fan favorite at Clemson, might get to play in Death Valley one more time.

Thad Ridgley

by Chris Metzler

Parents with two sons playing football at two different major universities have some tough questions to answer. Where do the parents go on football weekends? Which school's colors are worn by the family? The answer to these types of questions must be well thought out to ensure that there is no favoritism.

Roy and Dee Ridgley have been able to answer those questions perfectly according to their son Thad.

When Thad Ridgely came to Clemson in the fall of 1989 the Ridgley family was faced with two sons at major universities playing football. Troy, the older son, was already at Notre Dame playing on their defensive line, and Thad joined the Tigers as a tight end, but the parents were able to work things out so there was never any conflict. "My parents were very supportive of both of us. They went to as many of my games as they could. There was never any rivalry between my brother and me. My brother and I just wanted our parents to do what they wanted to do. My dad likes the color orange so he wears a lot of Clemson stuff and he has a belt from Notre Dame and, though I think it is very unattractive, he wears it frequently. With Clemson farther away from home than Notre Dame, my parents came to just the bigger games at Clemson. They wanted to come to all of the games, but I did not want them to go that far, especially if I was not going to play that much."

Thad's brother, Troy, was a starter on the defensive line for the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. One of his starts was in the 1990 Orange Bowl where he made a tackle at the one-yard line on a fake field goal attempt. He had nine tackles in Notre Dame's win over previously number-one ranked Colorado. During his career at Notre Dame he played in 28 contests and recorded 73 tackles. He is presently discussing contracts with several NFL teams who are interested in putting him on their developmental squad.

"I am very proud of what he accomplished at Notre Dame, and I hope he makes it in the pros," said Thad. "I don't think that he was much better than I was in high school. My brother was very good and he was highly recruited. He was a Parade All-American and was given many opportunities. He went on to play for a couple of great teams at Notre Dame and they did everything to help make him a great player. I have not had the playing time nor the opportunities at Clemson that he had while he was at Notre Dame, but we never compared stats or anything. We were just happy for each other."

While at Clemson Thad has seen action as a tight end and linebacker. In 1989 he was a tight end but was red-shirted that season. The next year he played in only one game as a tight end. Then in 1991 Thad was moved to linebacker where he saw action in only two games because he was hampered by injuries. Last season Thad played in every Tiger game, mostly as a special teamer, recording 19 tackles and one sack. His sack came against UT-Chattanooga and 12 of his tackles came on special teams, which ranked fourth on the team.

"My overall career at Clemson has not been as successful as I had hoped. Coming to Clemson, I thought that I was going to change college football with my style but it did not happen. I had quite a few injuries."

Those injuries also hampered his other sports career at Clemson. "In 1992 I told Head Wrestling Coach Eddie Griffin that I was interested in coming out for the wrestling team, but I had surgery (an appendectomy) at the Citrus Bowl game and my hopes to return as a wrestler ended. Then last year I went to a match and was not that impressed with the heavyweights. I began to think that I could help this team. Then the other part of my brain said, 'Okay tough guy, if you think you can beat that guy why don't you go out for the team.' So after the match I went up to Coach (Gil) Sanchez and asked him when practice was the next day. The team had just lost a match and Coach did not want to talk about much. When I saw him later that night he saw that I was sincerely interested in joining the team, so he invited me to practice."

As a wrestler Thad went 4-4 as the Tigers heavyweight, including a win in his first match which not only helped the team win, but also showed his football teammates that he was a capable wrestler. "Some football players kind of laughed at me when I went out for wrestling. They thought I was not going to be good enough, that I would never win. But after I won my first match they did not say much."

Coach Sanchez was impressed with Thad's performance last season on and off the mat. "He was a great help last season, he gave 110 percent. I think that some situations where a guy joins the team late in the season there are hard feelings between some of the guys already on the team. But, Thad came in and gave 100 percent at every practice and the other wrestlers were very receptive. He added excitement to the team by bringing in more fans and by winning some key matches for us. He has a personality that is great for the team."

Probably the most satisfied individual with his wrestling season, though, was his father. "My father was once a wrestling coach and he coached my brother and me in high school. Wrestling was probably his favorite sport and at one time it was also my brother's and mine, too. Dad really loved the sport and it was heartbreaking when we gave it up because he put so much time and effort into it with us. When I went back to wrestling last year it brought back memories for him. It was like it added life to him.

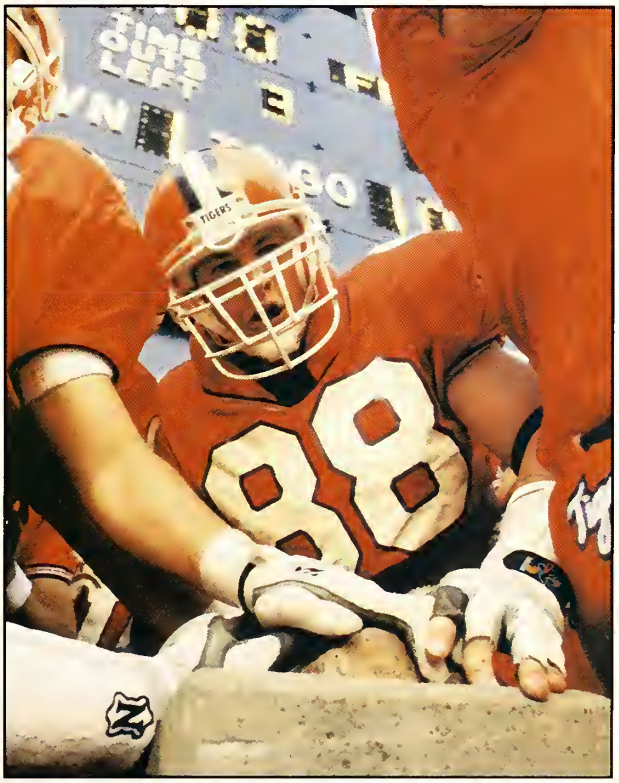
"When my brother and I told my dad we wanted to wrestle he had us lifting weights. I started at age five and my brother at age six because my dad said the only way you are going to wrestle is my way. He wanted us to be the best out there and be prepared. I think he was like that because he was a Marine. He went to the Marines at a very early age because his life was very difficult and he felt the only way out was to become a better person by going to the Marines. He learned a work ethic that he bestowed upon us. It is that work ethic that will carry us through life. He gave us the drive and desire to become the best we can be, it is a bloodline of competitiveness.

"This year I don't know if I will be going out yet for wrestling, but if I decide to I will give 110% again. Last year at this time I did not think I would go out either so I don't know what I will do this season."

Regardless of his decision on whether to wrestle Thad knows he will work toward getting his degree in August and then try out for a professional football team. "I want to graduate and then try out for some football teams. I know as a nonstarter the odds are greatly against my making the team, but I would like to be another one of the Cinderella stories you read about. I don't want to be in a rocker some day wishing I gave it a shot. All I can do is tryout and hope that things go my way."

If professional football does not work out, Thad is going to return home and give horse farming a try. "My dad recently purchased an Arabian horse and we would like to start breeding them. If I don't make it in football I would like to return to Pennsylvania and live on a farm with my horses. I also want to be there for my family and provide for them like they have provided for me. As they get older I am sure they will need me more, especially if my brother happens to make it in the pros."

One thing is for certain though, whatever Thad and his brother do in the future they will always have equal and constant family support.



Ridgley and his brother, Troy, have both played on top-15 teams in their respective careers in different parts of the country.

Bryce Nelson

by Brett Sowell

Imagine sitting at home late one night and hearing your door bell ring. You answer the door and there stands, a stranger, a big stranger in search of Kansas City Chiefs' football tickets. This scenario is one that Bryce Nelson a 6-2, 270-pound center placed on a complete stranger. If you happened to be that lucky person, chances are you would try your hardest to find those football tickets for Bryce. As it turns out Bryce was just as shocked as the person who opened the door that night.

"I was embarrassed because it was a little old man. When he opened the door both of us just stared at each other, he didn't know who I was and I didn't know who he was. I obviously had read the directions wrong to my friend's house where I was supposed to pick up the tickets. I eventually found the house," Nelson jokes.

These days Bryce Nelson is too busy concentrating on his duties as center for the Tigers instead of scaring people late at night. The 1993 season is Bryce's first as a regular starter for Clemson.

Nelson arrived at Clemson in January of 1992. He transferred to Clemson from Coffeyville Junior College where he was a first team Junior College All-america selection. At Coffeyville Nelson was also rated the sixth best center in the nation by Max Emfinger and also was rated 21st in the SuperPrep JUCO 100. He attended junior college to improve his play and to attract more attention from Division I schools.

"Out of high school I didn't get recruited by any big schools, just division II schools. I went to junior college to improve my stock and try to get some more interest. I guess it was after I was picked All-American in junior college that I began to get some attention."

In high school in Bryce Nelson's hometown of Lennexa, Kansas he was the MVP and captain of his football team his senior year. He also participated in the Kansas Shrine Bowl. An all-state and all-conference selection were among some of Bryce's other accomplishments during his prep career.

Most people might think that the role of the center is merely just the process of snapping the ball, but as Bryce explains there is more to the role. "The center is the leader of the offensive line and he has to make a lot of the line calls and remember the snap count. Also the center must try and be a leader out there on the field for everybody else. I feel my experience in junior college really helped me become accustomed to the role of center."

When Bryce Nelson arrived at Clemson he had to prepare for play on the division I level; it is a major transition after playing in junior college. He had to get bigger and quicker to compete with the more physical and faster play of division I football.

"When I came to Clemson I had to concentrate on increasing my strength as well as my overall speed. I feel like I have improved, but I still feel like I have to keep trying to increase my strength to be an effective player. This year I am probably a little bit undersized in terms of the competition that I will face, but I just hope that if I keep after it and do what I know how to do, I will be able to accomplish what is needed to be successful."

In 1992 during Nelson's first year as a Tiger he didn't see much playing time. The one game he did start is one he will never forget and probably no person who participated in the game will ever forget either. The game was Clemson's stunning come from behind victory over Virginia 29-28. Nelson was placed in the starting role when John Harris was sidelined due to an injury. The experience in the Virginia game was not a super one for Nelson, but he learned some valuable lessons. In the Virginia game he had a season high six knockdown blocks, graded 60 percent for his 69 plays and was a factor in Clemson's 402 yards of rushing.

"I was real nervous before the game and I was so nervous that I felt like I was going to get sick. Harris was hurt that game, but he had to come in at the beginning of the second quarter because I wasn't doing anything right. When he came in that helped me calm down a little bit and after that I was fine."

In Clemson's first game of the 1993 season Nelson tried to establish himself in the trenches of the offensive line by using some of his experiences in the Virginia game last year. Instead of looking back on the Virginia game as one filled with negative experiences, he has used that experience as a building block heading into his starting role this year.

"Going into the UNLV game this year I felt more comfortable as a starter. I looked back on the Virginia game to help me realize how I was going to feel before the game and to better prepare myself to handle the game situations that I was going to face. This year I hope to prove that I can be a steady center and to make as few mistakes as possible."

When Bryce isn't at football practice or football games his favorite hobby is automobiles. Bryce's fascination with automobile's originated with his father who has been an auto mechanic all his life. "My dad has been a mechanic all his life and since I was like 11 or 12 my dad had this truck that we worked on a lot. He really liked working on that truck and that basically started my fascination with fixing automobiles."

Bryce also lists his father as his biggest influence outside of football. "My dad has influenced me the most in my life. He is the type of person who will always be there for you and a person you can always count on. He'll do whatever it takes to get things done and he has always provided for our family."

Bryce Nelson is a secondary education major with an emphasis in history. After college he hopes to teach and coach high school football. "When I become a coach I don't want to be known as a screamer. I also don't want to be someone who always concentrates on what a person is doing wrong and never telling a person what they are doing right. A lot of coaches just show players what to do, but they don't teach a player what to do. I want to be a coach who is going to teach players how to perform their tasks." Nelson is set on concentrating on coaching on the high school level, but acknowledges that he would some day like to move up to the college level.

For now Bryce Nelson will concentrate on his school work and his play as center for the Tigers instead of looking too far ahead and of course, not scaring little old men late at night.

#61 Bryce Nelson was an All-American at the junior college level.

Lady Tiger Basketball

By Sam Blackman

Judging a book by its title can sometimes be misleading.

Given the fact the Lady Tigers lost five veteran players and have five newcomers on campus the obvious title would be rebuilding. However, Head Coach Jim Davis refuses to call this a rebuilding season, and instead he mentions the words improving, exciting, and competitive.

"I do not like the term rebuilding," said Head Coach Jim Davis who will be entering his seventh season at Clemson. "The five newcomers are not thinking about rebuilding. They are thinking of being the best they can be. From their perspective it is not rebuilding. We are not going to mention the term in practice.

"The bottom line is we have an outstanding group of players and in time, with hard work, determination, and sacrifices, and a willingness to learn, we will become a good basketball team not only in the future, but this season.

"We should have one of the better shooting teams we have ever had. There is not a player on the team who I don't consider a very good shooter. I also think this is the most athletic team we have ever had. We will rely more on pressing and trapping defenses than ever before. One area we must improve is rebounding. I think this will be our best rebounding team and this will be a main emphasis in the preseason work. We also have improved height and athleticism.

"The athleticism that we have on our team can enable us to be a very good defensive team. It will probably be in January before we have all the defensive principles installed. By the end of the year, I think you are going to see one of the best defensive teams we have put on the floor.

"Our success will depend on how badly our players want to win and be successful. I am excited about this team and our program. I think we will raise some eyebrows this year, and hopefully, we will be competing for championships."

Clemson's inside game was hit hard by graduation with the loss of first-team All-ACC performer Shandy Bryan. Three players, Jessica Barr, Alison Rhoad and red-shirt freshman Tabitha Chambers, are the returnees.

Clemson's third leading scorer and second leading rebounder in 1993, Barr is back for her senior season. The center/forward averaged 9.7 points and 4.3 rebounds a game last year, but showed considerable improvement at season's end. She was named to the All-Tournament team at the ACC event last year. "Jessica Barr can be one of the most talented post players in this league," said Davis. "She has to play consistently in practice and every moment of every game."

Alison Rhoad saw action in 19 games last year and 6.4 minutes per game. "Alison gained valuable experience last year and was a dependable reserve." Rhoad averaged 2.3 points and 1.2 rebounds a game last year.

Chambers redshirted her freshman year and at 6-6 she is the tallest player in Clemson women's basketball history. She picked up valuable experience as she worked hard in practice and offseason drills, and with the ACC All-Star team that toured Canada this past summer.

"Tabitha Chambers made great strides during her red-shirt season. She has a chance to be a really outstanding player. She can be as good as she wants to be because she is athletic enough at 6-6 to dominate on the inside, especially on the defensive end."

The newcomers in the frontcourt include Jaci Stimson, Laura Cottrell, and Dawn Stewart.

Stimson averaged 24.0 ppg. and 15.0 rpg. at Milford High School in Milford, NH. She was an all-state performer in basketball and volleyball. After her senior season, she was named New Hampshire's Player-of-the-Year in basketball.

Laura Cottrell, at 6-1, is strong enough to play the power forward position and at the same time has the shooting range to play the small forward. She will be a very good player at either forward position. It is a plus when a forward has three-point range. Cottrell averaged 20.2 points and 11.7 rebounds at Hayesville High School in Hayesville, NC. She was also a Street & Smith All-American.

Stewart averaged 21.5 ppg. and 14.0 rpg her senior season at Howard D. Woodson High School in Washington, DC. She was selected Gatorade Player-of-the-Year for the Washington, DC area. Stewart was also a Converse All-American.

Clemson returns four players in the backcourt position. Dana Puckett, Tara Saunooke, Dory Kidd and Calesha Corder make up the returnees.

Dana Puckett, a senior from Kingston, TN led the 1992-93 team in assists with 156 and she scored 6.8 points per game.

"Dana Puckett played solid the entire year at the point guard, and she does a good job taking care of the basketball. The most important thing she must do is accept her role and to provide leadership for our basketball team."

Tara Saunooke, another returning starter in the backcourt, was fifth in the nation in three-point field goal pct. (.454). She finished the season as Clemson's second leading scorer with a 10.2 ppg. average. Saunooke finished the season 59-130 from three-point range and averaged 25.5 minutes per game.

"Tara is an outstanding shooter, one of the premier three-point shooters in the country. There is no doubt this adds so much to our offensive game plan because she can spread the defenses. She is excellent in feeding the post players.

"Dory Kidd has the tools to be one of the best defensive players on the team. She is versatile enough to play any of the three perimeter positions, and we will be counting on her heavily for her perimeter play. She will emerge as a stopper on the defensive end." Kidd saw action in 25 games as a freshman and averaged 8.3 minutes per game.

Calesha Corder averaged 10 minutes a game last season and saw action mostly at the point guard position. "Corder was our comeback player-of-the-year as she had to rebound from illness and injury. She is extremely talented and I think she played really well in postseason play."

The Lady Tigers added two players in the backcourt in Angie Salyer and Renee Rayton.

Salyer averaged 12.3 ppg. and 6.7 rpg. at Smoky Mountain High School in Sylva, NC. She was a three-sport standout having played track and volleyball as well as basketball. Rayton averaged 16 ppg. and nine rebounds per game at Western Nebraska Community College. The native of Aurora, CO was a second-team junior college All-American last season.

Puckett and Saunooke are returning starters in the Lady Tiger backcourt and will be counted on for additional leadership and outside scoring in 1993-94.

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE:

Please step back and give the organized EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can frequently be more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake, and physical exertion. The two most frequent medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS:

Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice and seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK:

The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.
2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.
3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea, and/or shortness of breath.

EXPECT A DENIAL

Frequently heart attack victims deny they are having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don't want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, "It's just indigestion."

Find out what's really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. "Time is muscle." Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

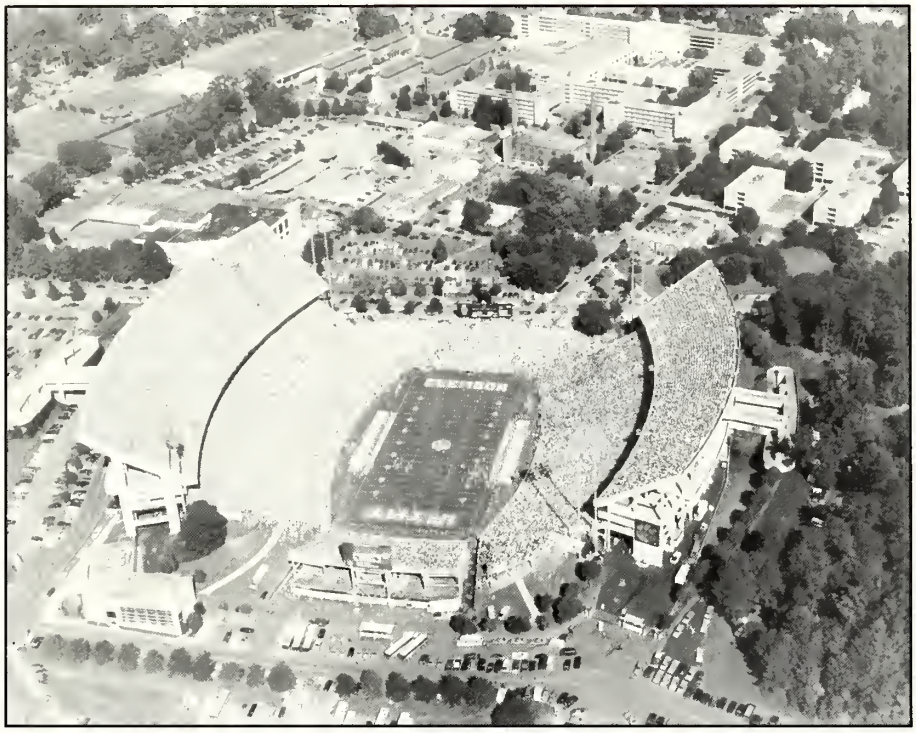
Memorial Stadium



Clemson has won over 72 percent of its games in Death Valley.

In the first 51 years of Memorial Stadium, Clemson has a record of 174-64-7, including a 16-2-1 ledger over the last three seasons. Clemson had a 16-game unbeaten streak at home between 1990-92 and has a career winning ratio of 72.5 percent.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need."

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

There are many stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 west end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled—the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. Teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

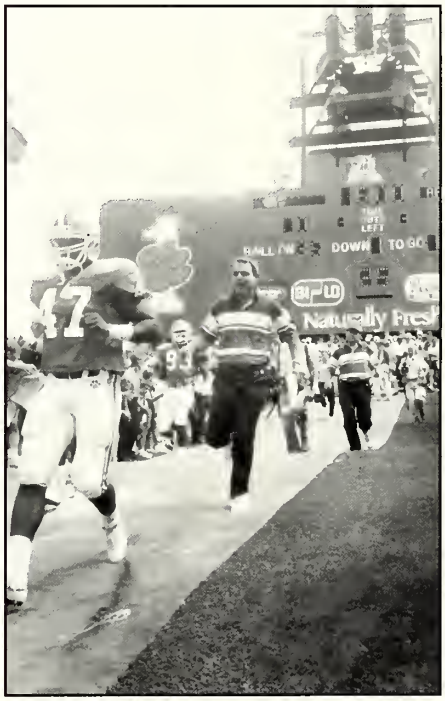
On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features that make it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house.

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. Another unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

If Memorial Stadium is expanded again and the capacity is pushed closer to 100,000, there will be room for construction over the west stands, enclosing that end like a horseshoe.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.



Clemson has the most exciting stadium entrance in the nation.

TEXTILES AND CLEAN & BEAUTIFUL

A new South Carolina environmental partnership!

TEXTILES Leading The Way to a clean environment.

As South Carolina's largest manufacturing employer, the textile industry has a solid record as a steward of the environment. Since the industry and its employees take environmental responsibility seriously, it is most appropriate that the South Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association enter into a partnership with South Carolina Clean & Beautiful to help keep the Palmetto State a wonderful place to live.

In the last decade, the American textile industry has invested some $1.3 billion on environmental controls designed to improve manufacturing processes by reducing pollution and helping to protect the environment. Textile plants are now recycling nearly half of what they used to send to landfills. They are reducing air emissions of certain chemicals, and textile plant discharge water is clearer than ever.

These are just some of the ways that the textile industry is leading the way to a clean environment. Joining hands with South Carolina Clean & Beautiful to promote educational and informational programs and activities that contribute to the environmental well-being of all South Carolinians is another example of textiles encouraging environmental excellence.

SOUTH CAROLINA CLEAN & BEAUTIFUL

Established in 1987 through a Governor's proclamation and joint resolution of the South Carolina General Assembly, South Carolina Clean & Beautiful provides the leadership for environmental improvements in communities throughout the state.

The program is part of the highly acclaimed and successful Keep America Beautiful organization. Activities throughout the state include "Adopt a Highway", "Grinding of the Greens", "Carolina Spring Clean", and "Take Pride in Public Lands Month". Extending the program's state-wide activities are Keep America Beautiful organizations in 19 cities and counties.

A further complement to South Carolina Clean & Beautiful, which is coordinated through the S.C. Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism, is its leadership of the Governor's Task Force on Litter, an alliance with eleven other state agencies for implementing cooperative environmental projects.

South Carolina Clean & Beautiful and Textiles...leading the way to more cooperative environmental activities to make the Palmetto State cleaner and more beautiful for everyone.

For more information, call South Carolina Clean & Beautiful in Columbia, 734-0141 and talk to the director, Diane Waddle.

TEXTILE EDUCATION

The annual Textile Bowl football game traditionally is one of the highlights of National Textile Week which is observed to focus attention on South Carolina's textile employees and the important contributions they make to their companies and their communities.

Many of those who work in the textile industry have received their education from the outstanding textile schools at Clemson and North Carolina State. Both institutions have contributed significantly to the growth of the textile industry in the Carolinas and are among only 12 universities in the nation that offer a full range of textile degree programs from bachelor to doctoral. Together, Clemson and North Carolina State have graduated over 11,500 students in the textile field.

Dr. Jerry E. Trapnell is the dean of the College of Commerce and Industry at Clemson University and Dr. Douglas V. Rippy is director of its School of Textiles. Also playing a major role in textile education at Clemson is the J.E. Sirrine Textile Foundation. Established in 1948 by the South Carolina textile industry, the Sirrine Foundation annually provides grants for student scholarships as well as periodic grants to up-date the textile school's equipment and facilities.

Graduates from the textile programs at Clemson and North Carolina State have helped make the South Carolina and the American textile industry the most modern and productive in the world. The industry is moving ahead rapidly with state-of-the-art manufacturing and merchandising technologies that include high-levels of automation and flexibility. The American textile industry is the most competitive in the world.

Today's Textile Bowl offers the industry, and particularly those textile firms in North and South Carolina, the opportunity to recognize the fine textile education programs at Clemson and North Carolina State. Your graduates, now our employees, have contributed immeasurably to the continuing success of our industry. We thank you!

Vickery Hall

The mission of Vickery Hall is to function as a comprehensive support system to address the various transitional needs of student-athletes and, in turn, give each individual the opportunity to make the most out of his or her college experience.

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength-training facility, young men and women from all 18 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletic Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and is the first facility in the nation originally constructed for the purposes of meeting the comprehensive needs of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000-square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes, and consolidates a variety of academic services for their use.

The philosophy behind Vickery Hall is to provide the Clemson student-athlete with a program that will meet his or her needs academically, in personal growth and development, and with career assistance. Vickery Hall is tangible evidence that, at Clemson, the athletic department has made a commitment to make the student-athlete's total experience a rewarding one, even after he or she enters the professional world.

"Vickery Hall is one of the most important facilities the Clemson University Athletic Department has ever built or will ever build. It makes a philosophical statement about the institutional commitment—giving our student-athletes the same opportunity to achieve their full potential academically that we give them athletically. We're very serious about that," said Athletic Director Bobby Robinson.

Given the time pressures of athletic participation and practice, student athletes face a difficult balancing act in trying to perform well both on the playing field and in the classroom. With respect to this, Clemson's Student-Athletic Enrichment Services (SAES) has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation over the last several years. The completion of Vickery Hall gives SAES an even greater opportunity to help student-athletes reach the short-term goal of graduation and the long-term goal of success in the world. The facility is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of the student-athlete.

Vickery Hall is located in the mainstream of east campus, behind Jordan Hall at the top of Bryan Mall. The main entrance to the building is a 1,570-square foot reception/office area, comprised of five advisors' offices, two graduate student offices, and a conference room. Also located on the bottom floor is the office of Bill D'Andrea, the director of Clemson's student-athlete enrichment program.

Vickery Hall operates under the guidelines and policies of the university and the center's staff adheres strictly to the rules and ethical conduct standards of the university. In addition to the director, the staff also consists of six full-time advisors, two graduate assistants, and 50 tutors.

The building also boasts a 175-seat auditorium to be used for classes, team meetings, review sessions, and seminars. The various speakers and lecturers who come to work with Clemson student-athletes as part of the student-enrichment program also use this facility. The auditorium is equipped with a projection booth and state-of-the-art audio and video equipment and will be available to other campus groups when not in use by Student-Athletic Enrichment.

Another area of the main floor, the computer resources area, consists of a general computer tutoring room and a computer science tutoring room. The computer room contains 30 personal computers for hands-on computer tutoring, word processing and other general uses.

The 13,000-square-foot study and tutoring area on the second floor comprises the majority of the center. This area contains 11 classrooms and 28 tutorial rooms, including a large 65-seat study room and nine 20-seat study rooms, which are designed as classrooms with freestanding desks.

Nelson Welch and Warren Forney use two of the 28 computers on hand in the Vickery Hall computer lab.

Computing Facilities

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to providing the student-athletes at Clemson with such equipment.

Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services Microcomputer Labratory. The lab is open six days a week, for 16 hours a day on Monday through Thursday.

The lab staff consists of mostly graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course as well as the many management, engineering and business courses that deal with personal computers. Student-athletes may also arrange tutoring sessions outside normal lab hours any time during the school year.

Computers in the lab can reach many of the other machines on campus, including the NAS mainframe, and are, in turn, connected to a worldwide internetwork, allowing lab machines to access computing resources throughout the world. This also allows access to lab resources from computers throughout the world.

Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program

The Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program is one of the most important programs provided by the staff of Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide help in securing summer employment and to aid in meeting long-term career goals.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center and the Athletic Department, Bill D'Andrea is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athlete with a job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

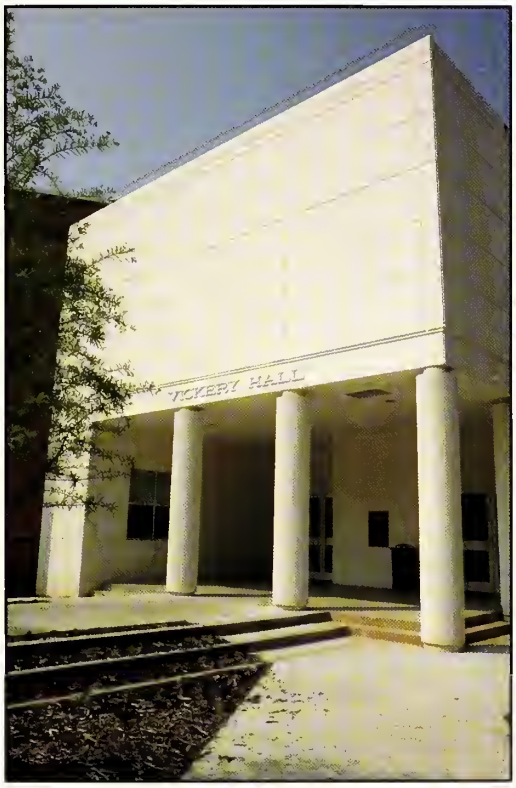
The Long Term Career Assistance Program will be coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and will focus on resume writing and interview techniques so that each student-athlete will be competitive and aggressive when dealing with companies who visit the Clemson campus.

Personal Growth Program

Another aspect of Clemson University's commitment to help student-athletes reach their potential in all areas of their life—academically, athletically, and socially, is the recently implemented personal growth program. This program is one of the many purposes of Vickery Hall. This particular area of student development is designed to enhance and support the lives of student-athletes during their enrollment in college as well as in their life experiences after graduation.

The Vickery Hall staff realizes that student-athletes have more obligations than a regular college student. The personal growth program seeks to eliminate some of the stresses of adjustment to the higher level of academics and athletics. It is the group's special task to assist the student-athlete by creating a finely tuned balance of all areas to insure success in obtaining a Clemson University degree, by supporting successful athletic practice and competition, enhancing personal growth, and helping with the transition to life after college.

A series of personal growth programs will be offered to student-athletes throughout each semester. Some programs may accomplish their objectives in one session, while others may be ongoing throughout the academic year. Some of the personal growth programs are as follows:



Vickery Hall was the first building in the nation built to meet the comprehensive academic needs of a university's athletes.

Freshman Success:

This program will seek to make the freshman's adjustment to college life easier by covering many areas of adjustment to university life.

Alcohol and Drug Issues:

The intent of this program is to provide the student-athlete with an overview of the disease of addictions and chemical dependence. Emphasis will be placed on providing basic awareness of how substance abuse effects individuals, families and athletic teams.

Current Topics of Concern:

The idea behind this segment of the Personal Growth Plan is to address issues that effect students such as human sexuality, birth control, date rape, etc.

Career Preparation:

The Career Preparation Plan is to encourage all student-athletes to think about life after sports and after graduation. Many sources of information will be available, from career testing to self-paced computer programs, and even with resume preparation and interview skills.

Nutrition and Eating Disorders:

Eating habits and proper diet are very important in maintaining a sound body and mind. The focus of this program revolves around presenting information so that student-athletes can analyze their own eating habits and carefully choose a balanced diet with enough calories to maintain good health.

Personal Finance:

Student-athletes on athletic scholarships are not allowed to have jobs during the academic year. Therefore, it is important to budget personal finances so they do not run out before the semester. This program not only discusses budgeting but also the responsible use of credit.

Stress Management:

All student-athletes face additional concerns during their college days than normal students. Many times these add stress to the everyday lives of student-athletes. The object of this program is to teach the student-athlete ways of identifying and handling personal stress so it does not interfere with the maintenance of good mental and physical health.

Interpersonal Communication:

Communication is necessary in all areas of life to improve happiness, instill contentment and enhance success. Programs dealing with interpersonal communication will involve improvement of listening skills, verbal skills and learning respect for the feelings and emotions of others.

Study Skills/Time Management:

These two topics are combined because a major part of developing good study skills involves having the time to delegate to studying. Objectives of this program are to expose student-athletes to different types of study techniques that are proven effective.

Motivation/Self-Esteem:

The objective of this program is to improve the level of self-esteem for student-athletes to positively impact their productivity in all areas of campus life.

Today's Band Program

Today as Clemson and N.C. State do battle in the annual Textile Bowl, we celebrate a common thread between the two universities. Both are known throughout the southeast for their outstanding textile schools and associated programs. Now more than ever the American public is aware of the impact of the American textile industry on our own economy. Clemson and N.C. State make a daily difference in the well-being of the textile industry by producing qualified professionals and valuable research. Today we salute both schools for this tradition of excellence.

Another Clemson tradition, Tiger Band, takes the field today for another afternoon of colorful and lively entertainment. The band will perform the traditional pregame show with selections including "Washington Post" and "America the Beautiful." As the band spells "Tigers" in script, James Hughes, the South Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association Employee-of-the-Year will dot the "i" in observance of the Textile Bowl.

After the invocation is given, the band will perform "The Star-Spangled Banner" followed by the Clemson University Alma Mater. The team will then gather at the top of the hill, rub Howard's Rock and rumble into Death Valley for yet another afternoon of fall football.

For today's halftime show, Tiger Band takes us on a little trip back in time. Today's show is entitled "Rock Classics" and features rock and roll selections from the 1960's and '70's. The first selection is "Journey to the Center of the Mind" by the Amboy Dukes. "Evil Woman Don't Play Your Games with Me" by Crow follows, and "Come Sail Away," made popular by Styx, is the show's finale. All selections will feature performances by the Tiger Twirlers and the Tiger Band flag line.

The flag line is made up of 24 members and is quite a select group of Clemson students. Auditions are held each fall for positions in the line. This year's flag line captains are Denice Degnan, a senior economics major from Irmo, S.C. and Bonnie Hilton, a junior agricultural engineering major from Jamestown, N.C. The flag line participates in all regular band rehearsals and also rehearses an additional day each week to perfect their routines. Additional flag line members include Sara Weeks, Ashley Lucas, Beth Cinader, Shannon Crenshaw, Aimee Guanlao, Julie Schuette, Amy Layton, Linda Siebert, Stephanie Barnosky, Nancy Soloman, Kim Tolsma, Jen Beckman, Paiton Benham, Kathryn Brucker, Chris McKittrick, Melissa Kelly, Pam Bowers, Kelly Jenkins, Tonya Sharp, Kathy Scales, Kimberly Driggers and Katina Davis. Cheryl Hosler serves as the flag line coordinator.

On this day as we salute the textile industry and the traditions at Clemson and N.C. State, we also pay tribute to Tiger Band and the wonderful job they do for Clemson, not just every Saturday, but all year long.

Clemson Alma Mater

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness
Where the Tigers play
Here the sons of dear old Clemson,
Reign Supreme alway.

Chorus

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might
That the Tigers' roar may echo
O'er the mountain height.

TEXTILE BOWL

The Textile Bowl matches up two great universities in the Carolinas, North Carolina State and Clemson. Each is nationally recognized for outstanding athletics as well as programs in textile education and training. The Carolina textile industry is proud of both of these fine schools, their faculty, their students and their alumni, many of whom currently serve the industry in various management capacities.

The industry is not only committed to higher education in both states but also to a better way of life for its many employees and their families. The plants in North and South Carolina produce almost half of America's textiles and provide good job opportunities in a modern environment for today's young men and women.

The textile industry is also proud of its reputation as a good Carolina citizen. The industry provides needed tax dollars along with grants to the arts, hospitals, libraries and human service organizations as well as higher education, reflecting its sense of corporate responsibility.

Textiles and the Carolinas...partners for better products and a better way of life for everyone.

Whitey Jordan

By Sanford Rogers

Almost everyone in attendance at today's game has had to pick up roots and move at least once in their lives. The process of moving is never an easy one, with almost all hoping that a particular move will be their last one.

Clemson Offensive Coordinator Whitey Jordan, now in his 35th year of collegiate coaching, now feels that his U-Haul day's are over. "I'm really glad to be home," said Jordan. "There is no place like Clemson. It was where I started, as a player and a coach, and this is where I will finish."

Jordan, who earned a degree from Clemson in 1957, is in his second stint as assistant coach for the Tigers. From 1959-72 he was an offensive line coach at Clemson, serving as offensive coordinator during the 1968 and 1969 seasons. He then began his "See America Trip," with coaching stints at Southern Mississippi, Southern Methodist, Wake Forest, Florida, and North Carolina. There is one common trend in all of those stops: victories. In the 20 years that the Florence, SC native was away from Tigertown, he was involved in 19 winning seasons.

The former Clemson tight end who led the 1957 (Clemson's first ACC Football Championship team) squad with 369 yards, feels he learned at each stop on his journey. "There have been high points at each place I have coached. I learned something from every coach I worked for. Whether it be Coach (Bill) Dooley's organization, or Coach (Bobby) Collins loyalty to his staff, I picked up some good habits and techniques from all of them."

One of the most challenging jobs that Jordan faced was at Southern Methodist. "When I went with Coach Collins to SMU, they had just come off a 10-1 season. It is harder to go into a program and maintain it, rather than build it, particularly when you have guys like Eric Dickerson and Craig James. But we had a great first year with a 11-0-1 record." The Mustangs continued winning during Jordan's time there, with 49 wins in five years, the most wins in the country during that stretch.

Jordan joined Mack Brown's staff for the 1990 season at North Carolina, serving as assistant head coach. "When I went to Chapel Hill they were coming off a pair of 1-10 seasons. The three years that I was there improvement was made each year, capping with the Peach Bowl victory this past year. North Carolina is a great school in a great town. Coach Brown gave me a super opportunity and I appreciate it."

At the end of the 1992 regular season Jordan knew of the opening of offensive coordinator at Clemson. "In the back of my mind I was hoping that Coach Hatfield would call. I had always wanted to end up back at Clemson. When I heard that 'Vandy' (coach Larry Van Der Heyden) left I was certainly interested." When Ken Hatfield offered the position to Jordan he jumped at the opportunity. "It was not a hard decision," said Jordan. "I really enjoyed my experience at North Carolina, and it would have been tough to leave there had it not been to come home to Clemson."

Head Coach Ken Hatfield was pleased when Jordan accepted the job. "I am tremendously excited to have Whitey Jordan come home to Clemson. He is coming back to a school that he has given an enormous amount of time, energy and effort to as a player and a coach. We welcome Whitey, Kappy, and the rest of their family home."

Jordan's family (four children and seven grandchildren) are also pleased with the return. "All of our children were born and raised in Clemson," said Jordan. "When we were traveling around to the different places I was coaching, living in condominiums basically, the kids really didn't have a home. If anyone asked where they were from, they would say our parents are here, there, and yonder. Now they are glad to say they are from Clemson."

While the move to Clemson was important from a family consideration, there were other considerations, like his offensive players for 1993. Jordan saw his 1993 Clemson offense from a different vantage point in 1992, while serving at North Carolina. Clemson played their best game of the season in the 40-7 victory over the18th-ranked Tar Heels. The Tigers ran 50 more plays than North Carolina and controlled the football for 43 minutes.

"North Carolina had a real good football team in 1992. North Carolina came in here planning on winning. But Clemson dominated in every phase. Clemson proved that they could be as good as any team in the country on a given day. That performance showed how good the offense can be when everything is going right."

Since his return to Clemson, Jordan has received many well wishers. "I have gotten a number of letters and phone calls from Clemson people. A number of my former players from Clemson have also called or stopped by. It is really nice to get back in touch with so many people that I haven't seen in a long time."

Jordan has also had contact with his former mentor Frank Howard. "I have visited with Coach Howard a good bit since I've been back," said Jordan. "He still watches football and knows what good football is. Coach Howard has been good to me, there is no doubt about it. I started out coaching with him. He taught me so much about the game of football."

Jordan is not the only former Clemson player to be back at Clemson. Defensive Coordinator Bobby Johnson, who played defensive back for the Tigers from 1970-72, has returned after 17 years coaching at Furman. Jordan feels a special bond with Johnson.

"I remember when Bobby played at Clemson. We had him on offense to begin with. In the three years I was around Bobby Johnson when he was a player he was very competitive. He coaches the same way with that same type of intensity. Between Bobby and myself I guess you could say we have covered five generations of Clemson players. We are both excited to renew old ties and make new ones."

Whether it be as a football player . . .

offensive line coach . . .

or coordinator, Whitey Jordan has served Clemson athletics in some capacity over a 40-year span.

Fred Cone

By Bob Bradley

For a guy who earned a football scholarship by jumping off a diving board, Fred Cone did just fine, especially since he never played the sport in high school.

Former teammate Don Wade says Cone saved his life. In a round-about way, Coach Frank Howard admits Cone saved his job.

How Howard recruited Cone actually sounds like some of Howard's other stories . . . true but skeptical. Howard's sister, Hazel, told him about Cone and Howard took him, sight unseen.

"We used to play Tulane in New Orleans," Howard recalled, "and Hazel lived in Biloxi, Mississippi and I'd always send her two tickets for the game. She lived next door to Fred's sister, but I didn't know it at the time.

"One year she sent the two tickets back," Howard continued, "and said she'd like to have four tickets because she wanted to carry her next door neighbor."

Howard remembers that when Cone graduated from high school, Hazel wrote him and said:

"Brother, I have you a good football player, but he's never played football." Howard said that he had told the Clemson registrar to save him 40 places and that he would turn in the names September 1st.

"When Hazel called me about Cone I had 39 names on that list. So I just wrote 'Fred Cone' in as the 40th name and that was that," Howard said in a matter-of-fact way. "And that's how I probably got one of the best, if not the best, football player I ever had."

It has been said that Howard's reasoning for ranking Cone in this lofty position was Cone's ability to turn the Clemson team of 1948 in the right direction. Cone was a member of the undefeated 1948 team as a sophomore that 'humiliated' Missouri 24-23 in the 1949 Gator Bowl. When the 1947 team was 1-5, a committee of students tried to talk Howard into resigning.

"Yeah, they came over and wanted to fire me (Bradley, you were probably one of them)," Howard said with a smile. "But I told them how we were going to do for the rest of the season (win the last three), and we did and the students thought I knew what I was talking about." Those three victories started a 15-game winning streak, which is a school record.

"Well, Fred came along and we had an undefeated season and then defeated Missouri and that was the turning point in athletics at Clemson as far as I'm concerned," Howard said without hesitation.

The 1948 season turned out to be like anybody's undefeated year . . . great plays, lucky bounces, created lucky bounces, and a group of players who found out they could be good and didn't take a back seat to anyone.

Against N.C. State (second game) Cone had the first of his eight career 100-yard-plus rushing games. The only score . . . a 90-yard punt return by Bobby Gage. The defense held the 'Pack three times on the one-yard line. But late in the game Cone broke through the line for a 43-yard gallop to ice it for the Tigers.

There was only one player (Tom Mooney) between him and the goal line and Cone hit him head-on. "I guess he thought I was going out of bounds," Cone recalled, "but I caught him flat-footed." Mooney suffered a broken collarbone, and several teeth were missing.

Wade remembers asking Cone after that play why he didn't try to side-step Mooney. Cone replied: "I was too tired to dodge him."

The Tigers had several close calls that season, scoring the winning points late at South Carolina on a blocked punt, withstanding 42 Butch Songin passes at Boston College, and nipping Auburn 7-6 in a monsoon quagmire in Mobile.

In the Missouri Gator Bowl game lies Howard's most memorable play. The Tigers led by one and were faced with a fourth-and-three at the Missouri 45. Much to the surprise of assistant Coach Russ "Pop" Cohen, Howard called a running play instead of punting. Cohen said to Howard: "Skipper, if he makes it, we'll all be heroes. If he doesn't, we'll all be those so-and-so's. I can't bear to look." Cone smashed at left tackle and hit a stone wall, but he rolled to the outside and made six yards and a first down and Clemson ran the clock out.

The Tigers had just a so-so season (4-4-2) in 1949, but a year later, there was a stable full of ponies coming back who had now been together three years. After drubbing Presbyterian (55-0) in the opener, Clemson faced Missouri in Columbia, Mo., who held a pre-season rank of No. 17. On the first play from scrimmage, Jackie Calvert dashed 80 yards to score and the visiting Tigers racked up a 34-0 victory.

The late Sarge Murchison of Anderson was always at the Anderson Airport to see the team off on road trips. On this trip, he had a Missouri mule at the airport and Cone appeared in the papers riding the mule the morning of the game. Crowds always greeted Clemson on its return to Anderson. In his pre-Missouri talk, Howard told the players that if they didn't win this game, "the only thing that'll be at that airport to meet you will be that jackass."

The only blemish on that undefeated season was a 14-14 tie at South Carolina when Steve Wadiak outgained the entire Clemson team with 256 yards rushing.

Miami wasn't too happy that Clemson was coming down to play their beloved Hurricane. And Howard wasn't too happy when Cone, Wade and two-time All Southern end Glenn Smith were just a tad late meeting curfew one night and were caught.

Howard threatened to send the trio home and even told one of the assistant coaches to go buy three one-way tickets on the Greyhound back to Clemson. The three pleaded for any form of punishment, but not to keep them out of the game. Howard agreed to let the team vote on whether or not they would play . . . but it had to be unanimous. Howard then told assistant coach Bob Jones "to contact the other team members and make sure that the vote goes right."

In the 15-14 Clemson win, Smith caught six passes for 93 yards and a touchdown; Wade was in on numerous key tackles and had two interceptions; and Cone gained 81 of Clemson's 152 yards rushing and scored one, in addition to handling the punting and returning kickoffs.

Cone was a major reason Clemson was undefeated in 1948 and 1950.

Cone completed his Clemson career with a dozen and a half records. And despite an 11th game being added and freshmen being eligible, Cone's accomplishments of over 40 years ago can still be found scattered throughout Clemson's record book.

It's a wonder sometimes that Cone and Wade made it through the night, let alone to still talk about it today. Each player had his own private pilot's license. And some of the things they did . . . like hedge-hoping over the 'Y' one day when South Carolina was in town for a baseball game and dropping a chicken out of the plane. It landed graveyard dead about 20 feet from Gamecock second baseman Pete Stokes, who today is head of all security at the University of South Carolina.

Wade later said of Cone: "He was more responsible for my playing than anyone else. I just had to get where I could play with that son-of-a-gun. To practice against him, he'd killed me. I didn't have to scrimmage against him because we were both on the first team."

After his Clemson career was completed, Howard asked his sister how she knew Cone was such a good football player? "He just looked so athletic jumping off that diving board," was Hazel's reply.

Why some teams have a stronger bench than others.
